you will be enjoying your new set of wheels!!

Although we do not offer every type of wheel construction available we have provided a list of the most common types of wheel construction.

Types of wheels

1-piece wheels - As the name implies a one-piece wheel is made of a single piece, usually a cast aluminum wheel from A-356 grade aluminum.

2-piece - 2-piece wheels are made from a cast or billet center welded into a spun forged barrel. This type of wheel weighs less than a 1-piece wheel and come in a variety of offsets.

Steel alloy - Steel alloy wheels are made from a pressed or stamped center welded into a steel outer barrel.

Forged wheels - One of the most advanced methods of manufacturing wheels today. Forging compresses a billet of aluminum into a wheel by using millions of pounds of pressure. The result is a wheel that is much stronger than a cast aluminum wheel.

Billet wheels - Can be of one or two piece design but two piece is more common. Billet wheels are machined from blank aluminum stock to desired design, size and application.

You'll get everything for bolt-on installation at no additional charge. TPMS sensors purchased are installed free of charge, too. And for a vibration-free ride, packages are also precision-mounted and Hunter RoadForce™ balanced.
